Radio Arts is the realization of a vision, rooted in the allure of history and guided by modernist sensibilities while embracing the energy of downtown Hamilton.

There's a new neighbour on the block.

At 14-storays, 122 suites, it's an intimate condominium conceptualized by KNYMH Architects that has been designed in the spirit of the past while rising up for a beautiful second act. The four-storey brick podium and arched windows gives a nod to the original 1908 architecture while a black and white tower of glass and artful staggered terraces, balconies and Julietts adds a modern contrast to the masonry.

Ever since my work on the Pigott Building, I have been fascinated by the home-grown creative energy and entrepreneurial spirit that is reshaping Hamilton.

I've always loved the eclectic architectural charm of downtown Hamilton, so when it came to Radio Arts, I wanted to make sure it reflected the unique fabric of downtown, while also recognizing Hamilton's renaissance of youthful, creative energy.

History lives here.

Regal Shirt Company

The original building located at 206 King Street West was built in 1908 to house a Hamilton shirt manufacturer called The Regal Shirt Company. In the late 50's the address became known as the Radio Arts building because it was home to brand new radio station, CHIQ. In the late 60's Hamilton Store Fixtures moved in and it became the brown cladded building on the corner of King & Caroline.

1959

CHIQ Radio Station

Original mosaic tile floor from the Radio Station era.

1968

Hamilton Store Fixtures

As the design team peeled back layers, they discovered an original mosaic tile floor from the former broadcasting station era that spells out 'Radio Arts.' This became the inspiration for naming the development. Other architectural details such as original beams and metal barn-style doors will be salvaged and reincorporated into the new building and will inspire the passion and pride in this next rich chapter.

Radio Arts is ready to give its residents, and a new generation a place to feel inspired, connect, create, build a life, and call home. Be part of what's next.

You've arrived.

The ground floor lobby features soaring ceilings, a seating lounge, private mail & parcel room, and *mosaic tilework from the original building's radio station era - restored to welcome you and your guests to Radio Arts.

CLEAR Hydro-Optic™ UV Water System is a centralized, chemical-free method to treat building water and designed to kill 99.99% of viruses and bacteria, resulting in pharmaceutical grade pure water without the use of chemicals.

Underground Smart Stacked Parking by Klaus – innovative urban stack parkers make parking your vehicle more efficient and convenient.

There's a distinct vibe in the city that plays on the sophistication of brick and beams.

I've seen how Hamilton has grown with the arts, music, and food scenes. Still, Hamilton's approachability has been consistent, and it's important that the design of Radio Arts reflected this in the interior design.

New Connections

Downtown Hamilton is undergoing a revitalization through the LRT project, and Radio Arts is poised to offer a more urban experience. The new future LRT will provide reliable and frequent connections on the 14-kilometer line from McMaster University through downtown Hamilton to Eastgate Square. The James and Queen stops are only a 4-minute walk from Radio Arts, with James connecting to the Downtown GO station.

Easy Connectivity

Enjoy convenient connectivity to all the shops, restaurants, arts and cultural events that you could ever desire. Walkable streets, proximity to local services and amenities, bike paths and lanes, transit within steps, or easy access to the 403 puts you in the right mix for getting out to get things done or just exploring the city.
